01 ABOUT US
02 CONFLICT RESOLUTION
03 COMMUNITY RESOURCES
We are a violence prevention, education and intervention-based organization, which advocates and supports youth, young adults, families and community organizations affected by violence.

Mothers In Charge, Inc. advocates for families affected by violence and provides counseling and grief support services for families when a loved one has been murdered. We are comprised of impassioned mothers, grandmothers, aunts, sisters and others who are committed to working towards saving lives and preventing another mother from having to experience this terrible tragedy.

Each mother, grandmother, aunt or sister brings a special gift to this organization and its mission. Their passion and drive comes from within because each one of these brave women has somehow found the strength to turn a personal tragedy into a medium for change. They realize that positive change cannot happen within communities without addressing the issue of senseless and random violence. They know that in the names of their lost sons, daughters, and loved ones they can and must serve as the catalyst for change.

HOW THE VICTIMS OF CRIME ACT (VOCA) CAN HELP FAMILIES AFFECTED BY HOMICIDE:
The VOCA services that are provided by Mothers In Charge include:

Disagreement is okay. Sometimes a respectable argument may be necessary. Unfortunately, not many arguments are done well. Most arguments fail to reach a resolution and lead to further dislike.

When you handle disagreements well, you’ll have a happier and more trusting relationship, or friendship with the other person.

Think back to some of your arguments. Was your friendship better or worse afterwards? This is really the only thing that matters. Are your friendships helped or harmed by your arguments?

The next time you find yourself in an argument or disagreement. Try these techniques:

Calmness is better than animosity. Anger leads to poor judgement. It’s a fact. When you’re angry, you’re less logical and reasonable. When you’re on your game, you’ll accomplish more.

Avoid insults and treats. They never work. You won’t get more out of a person by making them feel bad or afraid. Insulting or threatening someone isn’t the right way to find a solution.

Walk Away. If you keep disrespecting each other, maybe a break is in order. Leave the block, go home and chill, go for a walk with someone else. If it’s worth talking again, do it on a different day after you’ve had some time to cool off.

Be willing to listen. You can’t just speak. You have to listen, too. You never learn anything by speaking, but you can learn something when you listen.

ANTI-VIOLENCE PARTNERSHIPS OF PHILADELPHIA

AVP is a victim service agency that provides support services to victims of crime in the 12th, 16th, 18th, and 19th police districts (West and Southwest Philadelphia); and free mental health services (individual therapy, group counseling – crisis counseling, grief counseling, trauma therapy) to any Philadelphian impacted by violence (victims of violence and co-victims of homicide alike). We also partner with over 35 schools throughout Philadelphia (K-12), wherein we go into the schools to provide students with individual/group counseling, as well as psychoeducational support to school administrators in the aftermath of violence.

THINK Instead, currently we are offering a gun violence education program to 7th graders at Belmont Charter School. They are 8 week programs contact us at 215-879-1095. We also offer Anger Management and Intimate Partner Abuse Education to adult men and women. The goal is to end Domestic Violence. People who commit Domestic Violence are fathers, mothers, sisters, brothers in other words, people we love they are not monsters. We hold them accountable for their behavior and teach alternative behaviors and healing for trauma which is the root of their behaviors.
